

For CPON®s only: Earn the CPHON® credential for 50% Off!

If you're CPON® certified, apply for a 2012 or 2013 CPHON® Test and take 50% off the usual fee.

Why? So you can plan for your future certification renewals.

In 2016, the Individual Learning Needs Assessment (ILNA) will become a renewal method for CPHON®, OCN®, AOCNP®, AOCNS®, and CBCN® certification. The ILNA method will require renewal candidates to complete a learning needs assessment and individual learning plan, based on the subjects on the current certification test blueprint. Some nurses will be able to renew certification with as few as 25 points earned through professional development activities, based on their individual learning needs.

A learning needs assessment will not be available for CPON® renewal, because there is no current CPON® test blueprint on which to base the assessment. Nurses who wish to maintain the CPON® credential will be required to earn 100 points for renewal (at least 80 of pediatric content, at least 50 of pediatric oncology content) much like the current ONC-PRO renewal method. CPON®-certified nurses will be able to renew via the 100 point method for as long as desired.

It's an individual choice: continue to renew CPON® certification by the 100-point method; or pass the CPHON® Test, and use the ILNA renewal method. CPON®s who apply for a 2012 or 2013 CPHON® Test will save 50% off the usual fee.
